Abstract:

The tourism sector in Satara district, located in Maharashtra, India, holds significant potential due to its rich cultural heritage, natural beauty, and historical significance. However, the tourism industry in the region faces several challenges, including infrastructure issues, seasonal variations, and environmental concerns. This paper aims to explore the problems and prospects of tourism in Satara district, examining the factors influencing its growth and development. It also identifies potential solutions to overcome the challenges and enhance the tourism experience in the region, focusing on sustainable tourism practices. The data thus collected through primary and secondary sources

Keywords: Tourism, Infrastructure, Sustainable Tourism, Environmental Impact, Cultural Heritage, Natural Beauty

Introduction:

Tourism geography is the study of the spatial aspects of tourism, looking at how tourist activities are influenced by geography and how tourism, in turn, impacts geographic regions. It's an interdisciplinary field that blends elements of geography, economics, sociology, and environmental science to understand both the patterns of travel and the effects of tourism on specific destinations.

Tourism plays a pivotal role in the economic development of many regions around the world, and Satara district is no exception. Located in the western part of Maharashtra, Satara boasts an array of tourist attractions, including historical forts, natural landscapes, pilgrimage sites, and wildlife sanctuaries. However, despite these attractions, tourism in the district has not fully reached its potential. This paper seeks to examine the key challenges faced by the tourism sector in Satara and explore the prospects of expanding tourism while ensuring sustainability.

Study Region:

Satara district is renowned in the Maharashtra in many aspects. But the agriculture development in Satara district is not same. Rainfall distribution in Satara district is uneven west part of the district is heavy rainfall and eastern part scarcity in the rainfall. The district lies at the western limit of the Deccan table and in southern Maharashtra.
